The Importance of Working with Your Child at Home...

Did you know???

According to the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), a division of the U.S. Department of Education, children who are read to at home enjoy a substantial advantage over children who are not:

- 26% of children who were read to three or four times in the last week by a family member recognized all letters of the alphabet. This is compared to 14% of children who were read to less frequently.
- The NCES also reported that children who were read to frequently are also more likely to:
 - count to 20, or higher than those who were not (60% vs. 44%)
 - write their own names (54% vs. 40%)
 - read or pretend to read (77% vs. 57%)

These students, their teachers and family members are invited to a pizza luncheon on February 3 @ 12:30 P.M.

- The more types of reading materials there are in the home, the higher students are in reading proficiency, according to the Educational Testing Service.
- The Educational Testing Services reported that students who do more reading at home are better readers and have higher math scores; however, students read less for fun as they get older.
